HE FEARS KIDNAPPING.

Little Georgia Says in Court She Prefers Grandpa's Home.

George W. Lyons, a wealthy resident of Bing Sing, has a Winchester rifle hanging in his home to protect his little granddaughter from kidnappers. He appeared in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, and said he had threatened an agent of the child's mother, who was skulking around

"I'll use it, too, to defend my grandchild from kidnappers," he said warmly. Little Georgia Lyons is thriteen years pld. She is the daughter of William and Charlotte Lyons, of No. 403 Cumberland street, Brooklyn. The child's father lost his position six years ago, and being un-able to take care of his daughter, sent her to his father's house in Sing Sing. The grandfather sent her to school and gave her every advantage that comes from Recently Mrs. Lyons decided to have her daughter come home. The child did not care to leave her grandfather, and Mrs. Lyons obtained a writ of habeas corpus, in answer to which the elder Lyons brought his granddaughter to court yesterday.

The child's father opposed his wife's demands. He is still out of work and said he thought it much better that Georgia remain with her grandfather. Mrs. Lyons said she was able to work and could support her child.

"And do you want to come home to your mother?" asked Justice Garretson, turning to the child.

"I would rather stay with grandpa until papa gets work and is better able to support me," was the reply.

Justice Garretson took the papers and reserved decision. daughter come home. The child did not little or no opposition to Comptroller Coler's recommendations for a change in the distribution of city funds to charitable institutions when the Board of Estimate took up the consideration of these matters yesterday.

There were present representatives of several hospitals and charity societies. The sole objection to the plan was made by Mts. Kmox, representing the American Female Guardian Society, who complained that the Board of Education allowed her only $10 a child for the society's school, whereas $20 was needed. The Mayor rewhereas $20 was needed. The Mayor replied that the society already received $65,286.14 and that if Mrs. Knox's ideas were carried out the public schools would have to be abolished.

Building No. 3, owned by the Bush Storage Company, at the foot of Forty-second street, South Brooklyn, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon together with cotton worth $300,000, stored in bales. The total loss is estimated at nearly $500,000. William A. Brodle, the superintendent, discovered the flames on the ground floor at 2 o'clock. Four clarms were sent in which brought twenty engines and three fire boats. Chief Croker and Deputy Chief Dale were both on hand. Building No. 3 was nearly 400 feet long,

The Comptroller's recommendations are that hereafter all appropriations to charifable institutions be inade out of the budget and not in part from the excise or theatrical funds; that a uniform rate of $2 a week he paid for the maintenance of children over two years old and 38 cents a day for infants; that the lump sum payments to hospitals be abolished and a uniform rate of $1 a day for surgical and 70 cents a day for medical cases be substituted; that the letty pay to institutions in the future 50 per cent of the amount received by them from private sources. Other changes are the cutting down by one-half for 1900 of the amounts allowed to homes for the aged; the discontinuance of outdoor relief and the placing of institutions favored by legislative enactment on the same footing as all others receiving aid from the city. 1338

SYSTEM IS TO BLAME

Responsibility Rests with the War Department, and Congress's Prompt Action Is Needed.

Washington, Oct. 13.-In his annual report General Merritt, commanding the Department of the East, severely criticises the artillery branch of the service and the quartermaster's department.

This report has stirred the War Department. It follows fast the recent arraignment of the artillery by Colonel Royal T. Frank and the startling adverse report made a year ago by Captain William T. Crozler on the general system of coast de-

The information which the War Department has had forced upon it by General Merritt and others is, briefly: There are no range finders for the twelveinch mortars.

There are not enough culisted men to provide a relief. There are insufficient barrack accommo dations. The artillery organization is lamentably

The artillery organization is lamentably insufficient.

There is not sufficient protection for valuable guns at seaconst ports.

Men leave the artillery because they get the same pay in the infantry and cavairy for less work.

General Merritt exonerates the artillery officers from blame. He says:

"That the const artillery is not to-day in an efficient condition is due to causes over which artillery officers have no control; nor can these impediments be reached by the department commanders. Some require the action of the Secretary of War, and others can be remedied only by Congress."

General Merritt calls the special attention of the War Department to the report of his artillery inspector. Major Story, in which it is explicitly charged that the quartermaster's department has failed to provide sufficient accommodations at the new artillery posts. The following recommendation of General Merritt is interesting: "It is also observed that the artillery should be inspected by artillery officers, and the fact that the department commander's artillery mespector has no power to inspect is a patent obsurdity and one which I urge may be disposed of at an early date. The means of making any arm of the service and it should be should rest with the general commanding the geographical department in which the said arm of the service

Cured in Fourteen Days.

My second child got eczema when seven months old. Three months later my first child got it, and following him, the last one, two years old, fell a victim. For twenty months they suffered fearful agony. Their whole bodies, especially their faces, were so sore and raw that the little ones were blind half the time. No words can describe the suffering of my second child, whose whole body was one bloody mass. He was constantly crying, could get no sleep, and he actually did not look human. I tried doctor after doctor, but none afforded the slightest relief. I decided to try Curicura. The first application brought relief in each case, and after fourteen days' treatment with Curicura Soar and Curicura (ointment), the worst case was cured, and the whole neighborhood is surprised at the wonderful effect of Curicura. I continue the use of Curicura Soar for the children, because it makes the little ones look spleudid. Nov. 28, 1898. Mrs. Annie Ring, 515 E. 13th St., New York City. The New Dooley Book

MR. DOOLEY In the Hearts of His Countrymen

By the Author of "Mr. Dooley: In Peace and in War"

With an even keener wit and a broader wisdom, Mr. Dooley discusses in this his second volume the humors and the pathos of life in the Archey Road, and delivers to Mr. Hennessy and Mr. McKenna his opinions on current affairs, from the poetry of Mr. Rudyard Kipling to the siege of Fort Chabrol. It is the best and most delightfully amusing book of humor since Hosea Biglow.
